Mark Thiessen Presents "Under Fire"

November 17, 2008

Mark Thiessen has been a photographer with National Geographic since 1990 and on staff since 1997.

In 1996 he began a personal photography project on wildland firefighters that takes him to the frontline of wildfires every summer. To better explore in-depth the world of this little known subculture, he became a certified wildland firefighter. Mark's award-winning piece on a veteran wildland firefighter, FireCall, can be found at:

He was also profiled for an episode of National Geographic Channel's Out There series. His most recent story on Wildfires was published in National Geographic Magazine in July 2008.
